Dear Honorable Casey:

The Center for Law and National Security, University of Virginia, will hold its fourth annual seminar entitled "Technology Control, Competition and National Security" at the University of Virginia School of Law, Charlottesville, Virginia, on October 17-20, 1985. The seminar will consist of panelists and keynote speakers who will discuss the important issues involved. We are in the process of lining up a distinguished group from government and the private sector to address the subject. Enclosed are the agenda highlights.

On behalf of the Center, I extend to you a most cordial invitation to attend this seminar and participate in the various events. Your attendance will contribute to the success of the seminar.

Although the Center is unable to pay for your travel, accommodations and meals in Charlottesville, we will be pleased to arrange accommodations for you at the Boar's Head Inn. Spouses and guests are welcome to attend all events.

Enclosed is a registration form for the seminar, which includes information on the accommodations at the Boar's Head Inn and the expenses of the various meals. You will note that a deposit is required for the first night's accommodations at the Boar's Head Inn, as well as advanced payment for the Center sponsored meals (2 receptions and banquets and 1 luncheon).

In addition to the seminar, arrangements will be made for a tour of the historic areas of Charlottesville on Friday, October 18th.

Again, I hope you can attend this important seminar and I look forward to seeing you in Charlottesville, October 17-20, 1985.

Sincerely,

John Norton Moore
